Knowlton's appeal denied Farr withdraws appeal and resigns

By SUSANNE WENDT
Universe Staff Writer

David Knowlton, a BYU anthropology faculty member who was told after his year-long review this summer he was being denied continuing status, was told Tuesday that he no longer has a job at BYU once his contract expires in August.

Knowlton's fellow faculty member Cecilia Konchar Farr, who also went public on her appeal to appeal BYU's decision to terminate her employment, withdrew her appeal and has made an agreement with the University, according to Margaret Smoot, Assistant Advancement Vice President of University Communications.

BYU's public communication office released the decision Tuesday morning. Both faculty members appealed the original decisions released this summer to the University's Academic Vice-President Council. In both cases, the faculty members will stop teaching when their contracts expire in August.

Knowlton was stunned by the decision, Knowlton said in a telephone interview from Colorado College in Colorado Springs, Colo., where he is teaching for four weeks. "I've been seriously wronged. The University needs to reform itself and learn to follow its own rules."

"I've been seriously wronged. The University needs to reform itself and learn to follow its own rules."

—David Knowlton

BYU officials said Knowlton's reaction is understandable and that they wish him well. "It's been a difficult decision for all of us," Smoot said. "Whatever specific comments he has about the process I'm sure will be addressed by the appropriate people who will be involved in what changes need to be made in the document."

Knowlton, a self-described "pro-choice Mormon" shocked University officials when he spoke at a pro-abortion rights rally at the state Capitol. Knowlton was also backed publicly for discussing terrorist attacks against the LDS Church in America.

Knowlton said he is pursuing legal action and his supporters plan to ask the National Professional Academic Associations to censure BYU.

Knowlton said he found out about the council's decision Tuesday morning, about the time BYU made the announcement to the media.

Knowlton's case, the Academic Vice Presidents' Council made a clear recommendation to President Rex E. Lee and Provost Bruce C. Hafen and they agreed to it, Smoot said.

The decision was followed by the president basically saying, "This is your decision and it is my decision. I've read it and I confirm it," Smoot said.

Knowlton says the fact that the AVPs made the recommendation to reject his appeal puzzles him.

Knowlton said, "We destroyed every single argument the University had. It's a mockery of the entire process."

"David is entitled to support his own scholarship, others are entitled to make a similar conclusion based on their own perspective," Smoot said in response.

Knowlton said he was sad to see Farr leave BYU. He said she is an excellent scholar and will be missed. He said he was not offered a financial settlement with the University.

"I am leaving BYU to pursue my scholarship and teaching in an atmosphere where I can feel more free to speak out on issues that have provoked controversy here," Farr said Tuesday. "I wish BYU well and most of all I wish my colleagues and friends here all the best. Your love and support make this difficult decision both easier and twice as painful."

As part of her agreement with BYU, Farr will not discuss any financial settlements that she may have made with the University. Smoot also declined to discuss details of the agreement, saying only that Farr has agreed to not release the proceedings of the review or the appeal.

Farr said her agreement did not prohibit her from expressing her views elsewhere or talking to the media, and said she will not sue the University.

"The settlement is satisfactory to me and the University so I don't need to pursue a lawsuit," Farr said.

Farr said she felt a loyalty to BYU, but that she was fired for her feminist views. "I pursued the appeal in good faith, but I think the decision was made before I filed the appeal," she said. "I was fired and eventually resigned because I'm a feminist. I don't want to stay at BYU. I've got my record clear and I'm leaving."

BYU officials say that to say Farr was denied continuing status because she was a feminist is too simplistic.

"I think the issues go so much deeper than simply attaching a label in Cecilia's case," Smoot said. "I think it's much more complex."

Smoot declined to hold a "point/counter-point" argument about the appeals.

"We're not going to get into a rehash and rehearse," she said. "In Farr's case, we both came to the edge, we both stepped back and agreed that we'd leave some things unresolved. We'll give her a window of opportunity. But we do acknowledge that we don't have an agreement on citizenship."

Records from the hearing and the appeal process will not be released by the University, and will only be released if the former faculty members choose to do so.

While Farr and Knowlton both agreed to make their appeals public, six other faculty members appealed BYU's decisions this summer. In two cases, the faculty members will make corrective action and stay on as BYU employees. In two other cases, including Farr's appeal, the faculty members withdrew their appeals and in three promotion-related cases the faculty members were denied promotion. BYU will not release the names of the others who appealed BYU's decisions.

TAKING BACK THE STREETS: Vice President Al Gore joins President Clinton in applause for James and Sarah Brady. Cheers and applause erupted in the East Room when Clinton signed the long-fought Brady bill requiring a five-day waiting period and background check on handgun buyers.

Brady bill signed into law amid cheers

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — As James Brady turned in his wheelchair to watch, President Clinton signed into law the most sweeping handgun control bill in a quarter century Tuesday.

Clinton signed the long-fought bill before an audience of law enforcement officials, mayors, governors, members of Congress and families who have lost relatives to gun violence.

The new law will require a five-day waiting period and background check on handgun buyers when it takes effect in 90 days. It was named for Brady, the White House press secretary who was left disabled in the 1981 assassination attempt against then-President Reagan.

Brady called the ceremony "the end of unchecked madness and the commencement of a heartfelt crusade for a safer and saner country."

It was the first major gun bill since 1968 when Congress banned mail-order purchases of rifles, shotguns, handguns and ammunition and curbed out-of-state buying of those firearms.

Clinton said the Brady bill finally passed "because grassroots America changed its mind and demanded that this Congress not leave here without doing something about this. And all the rest of us, even Jim and Sarah, did was to somehow light that spark that swept across the people of this country and proved once again that democracy can work."

"America won this battle," the president said. "Americans are finally fed up with violence that cuts down another citizen with gunfire every 20 minutes."

Richard Gardiner, the NRA's legislative counsel, said in a telephone interview, "The bill will not have the slightest impact on violent crime."

A major anti-crime bill is expected to be high on the agenda for Clinton and Congress next year.

Clinton said that signing the Brady bill was "step one in taking our streets back, taking our children back, reclaiming our families and our future."

Clinton and Sarah Brady both noticed a Washington Post story that said background checks and waiting periods in California, Florida, Virginia and Maryland have blocked more than 47,000 attempted gun purchases by people who at the time were banned from buying firearms.

PLO peace pact sees bloodiest day

The Associated Press

KHAN YUNIS, Occupied Gaza Strip

— In the bloodiest day of street battles since the Israel-PLO accord was signed, Palestinians hurled rocks and burned tires Tuesday to protest the army hunt for PLO gunmen and the lack of progress in peace talks.

Soldiers responded with gunfire, killing one Palestinian and wounding 65.

Troops killed a 16-year old boy during clashes near an army encampment in Gaza City's Sheikh Radwan neighborhood, Arab witnesses said. Israeli radio said the youth was shot by mistake.

Hundreds of makeshift barriers blocked roads to enforce a three-day general strike called by the Palestine Liberation Organization. Clouds of smoke from burning rubber rose over the Gaza Strip.

The violence reflected Palestinians' growing frustration over the lack of change and threatened to complicate negotiations on the handover of Gaza and Jericho on the West Bank scheduled to start Dec. 13.

Still, two meetings held Tuesday reflected continued efforts toward peace.

Maj. Gen. Matan Vilnai, the Gaza Strip military commander, met with five PLO leaders in Gaza to discuss a cease-fire, and a top aide to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin arrived in Tunis for talks with PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

In Gaza, the PLO leaders demanded that the army stop shooting Palestinians, stop hunting members of the Fatah Hawks, release jailed Hawks and reduce its presence in Gaza.

The Hawks are the military wing of Arafat's Fatah faction.

"We hope the bloodshed will be stopped. We have agreed on practical steps to solve the situation," PLO leader Sufian Abu Zaydeh said after the meeting. He would not give details.

Apparent Y suicide raises mental health questions

By MATTHEW MacLEAN
Universe Staff Writer

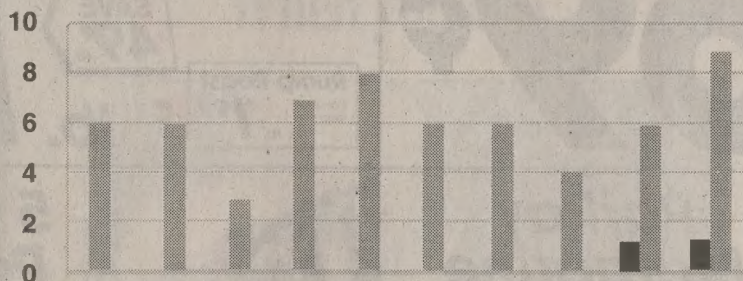

In the wake of the apparent suicide of BYU student Douglas Gore Nov. 12, questions have been raised about the emotional health of students and the incidence of suicide at BYU.

According to police statistics, BYU averages about six attempted suicides per year. Early statistics did not differentiate suicide attempts from actual suicides, but within the three years that this distinction has been made, there have been two successful attempts.

A student hanged himself during the winter semester last year, and in 1988 a student died of a shotgun wound to the head. Taken together with the recent death of Gore, all three self-inflicted deaths were committed by male students and all occurred at Deseret Towers.

A Brian Anderson is the supervising investigator of University police. In this position, he has been

Self-inflicted deaths and attempts by BYU students

Prior to 1990 individual breakdown between attempts and successes at self-inflicted death was not kept. Prior to 1991 departmental statistics were kept by academic year. In 1991 they were converted to calendar year. *1990/91=16 months, Sep 1990 thru Dec 1991. **1993 is not complete...these figures are thru November 23, 1993.

directly involved with incidences of self-inflicted death over the past several years.

Anderson pointed out that the suicide rate at BYU is relatively low compared to the national rate or even that of other universities, but that "any at all are too many."

"It's particularly alarming at a university," he said. "We tend to feel guilt and wonder what we could have done to prevent it."

Anderson said that in the cases he has dealt with, most attempts have been by female students, but most successful attempts have been by males, since males tend to use more lethal methods. Also, females tend to tell others about their plans and therefore receive help faster.

But beyond these patterns, there are not any other noticeable trends.

"My advice to anyone with any kind of thought or concern about this is that they take advantage of the good, free resources we have on campus," Anderson said. "There is always hope and other options."

BYU's main resource for suicide prevention and counseling is the Counseling and Development Center in the Kimball Tower. David Sorenson, the center's director, agreed that the best thing someone with a concern about suicide

Suicide down during the holidays

By KIRSTEN SORENSON
Senior Reporter

Suicide is the eighth-leading cause of death in the United States. About 33,000 Americans commit suicide every year and thousands of others attempt suicide.

Suicide rates around holidays are low, however, and suicides peak after holidays rather than during them.

Memorial Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas have an unusually low risk of suicide before, during and after each holiday. New Year's Day, July 4th and Labor Day have a low risk of suicide before and a high risk after the holiday.

In addition, all demographic groups except white teenagers experience a low risk of suicide around holidays. A study by Northwestern National Life Insurance also supports the assumption that holidays are a risk factor in suicide.

National suicide statistics reveal that more suicides are committed per 100,000 residents in the Western states than in the rest of the country.

Suicide attempts-and-success rates for women are surprising. Women attempt suicide at almost three times the rate of men. In addition, suicide attempts outnumber suicide completions at a ratio of eight to one for women.

Men are four times more successful at suicide than women possibly because men, especially in the West, employ more lethal methods, like firearms, to commit suicide.

Also, according to a study by Northwestern National Life Insurance, teenage suicide rates increased in 37 of the 50 states during the 1980s. The greatest increases were in Hawaii, Idaho, Wyoming and Alaska.

Among college-age U.S. youths, suicides have increased by 200-300 percent over the past 25 years. For their part, college students commit suicide at about half the rate of non-students their age. Suicide rates vary little between highly competitive and less rigorous schools.

Student suicides peak in September, March and January, which are not the most stressful times, academically speaking.

Amtrak train collides with tractor-trailer

INTERCESSION CITY, Fla. — An Amtrak passenger train smashed into a stalled tractor-trailer Tuesday as frantic state troopers tried to flag it down. About 70 people were injured.

The oversized truck carrying a 150-ton generator got stuck at a train crossing several minutes before the collision, said Chris Gent, a spokesman for the Kissimmee Utility Authority, which owns the generator.

A train dispatcher was notified about the stalled truck and told utility officials that the train was not due at the crossing until 1 p.m., said Gent, who witnessed the accident.

CSX Transportation says it didn't receive any phone call prior to the accident.

The train struck at 12:45 p.m., Amtrak spokeswoman Sue Martin said. "The signal crossing arm came down on top of the cab. I didn't know what was happening. Then I saw the train," Gent said. "Then it hit ... I heard the scraping and the screeching of the steel all along the track."

Four of the eight cars on the Tampa-to-New York Silver Meteor derailed. The first sleeping car overturned when it jumped the tracks. Rescue workers had to pry off some windows to rescue trapped passengers.

Hubble costs Americans 2 cents per week

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Feel free to put in your 2 cents worth once spacewalking astronauts start trying to fix the Hubble Space Telescope.

That's what it costs each American citizen each week in taxes to operate and maintain the billion-dollar-plus observatory, which has bad eyesight, bad memory and a bad case of the jitters.

Space shuttle Endeavour was due to blast off before dawn today on the multi-million-dollar mission, considered the most complex shuttle flight and biggest repair job in space ever.

Bad weather threatened to delay the flight. Forecasters gave only a 30 percent chance of favorable conditions for the scheduled 4:57 a.m. EST launch.

Clinton hints at trade talk compromise

WASHINGTON — Heading into a crucial round of negotiations, the Clinton administration suggested Tuesday there is room for compromise with France in a fight that has blocked completion of global free-trade talks.

Both U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy indicated there were ways to resolve the dispute over farm subsidies, the key stumbling block to completing the Uruguay round of trade negotiations.

Kantor expressed hope that the United States and the 12-nation European Community could reach an outline of an agreement covering agriculture and other issues during discussions today and Thursday.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher was scheduled to take part in the talks in Brussels, Belgium, with Sir Leon Brittan, the EC's chief trade negotiator, and other EC officials.

The goal is to clear up remaining issues between the United States and the EC, and take that deal to Geneva.

Utah woman pleads guilty to manslaughter

PROVO — Julia S. Hazel, charged with stabbing her husband to death, pleaded guilty Tuesday to manslaughter.

Hazel, 29, had admitted to killing Larry G. Hazel, 32, with a kitchen knife on Feb. 19 in their Spanish Fork home. She said he beat her and tried to rape her. She was charged with murder.

Hazel said she didn't want to face a trial, and pleaded guilty to manslaughter Tuesday morning in 4th District Court.

In pleading to the charge, Hazel faces one to 15 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Utah County prosecutors said they will recommend that Hazel be sentenced as if the offense were a third-degree felony, which carries a one-to-five-year prison term and $5,000 fine. Prosecutors will also suggest Hazel not go to prison.

The recommendations do not bind Judge Lynn W. Davis, who will sentence Hazel Jan. 4.

Hazel intended to use battered woman's syndrome, a new and controversial psychological disorder, as a defense for her actions. She claimed her husband regularly abused her.

can do is share the concern with others.

"People with a concern should share it with a friend, bishop or counselor," he said. "If they get the person involved with other people, they are headed in the right direction."

Sorenson said a disproportionately large percentage of students that have problems with suicide are, surprisingly, high achievers with good grades.

"It depends on where one gets his sense of satisfaction and self-esteem," he said. "A good student may value high grades more than others, and is less able to deal with academic failure."

Sorenson said BYU's religious nature is a mixed blessing. Students can find peace and stability in their faith in a strong purpose in life, but some suffer from guilt associated with failure to live up to religious laws or standards.

Outside of campus there are several organizations aimed at suicide prevention; including Charter Hospital and Utah Valley Medical Center.

A Charter Hospital employee, Matt, who handles a suicide crisis line said an average of one call a week comes from a BYU student.

"Usually about one-fifth of the calls are really serious," he said.

Volunteer suicide crisis lines also exist, but they are apparently understaffed and overworked. When the Daily Universe called one such crisis line during Thanksgiving vacation, a recording machine answered and directed the caller to dial 911 if the situation was an emergency.

Kevin (who asked that his real name not be used) is a former BYU student who had a near-suicide experience while an undergraduate here.

"What I want people to understand is that they shouldn't be afraid to act just because they don't want to interfere with the person's privacy or otherwise embarrass them," he said. "No matter what the person's difficulty is, they are lonely and isolated, and no harm could be done by getting involved with their lives."

New design proposed for U.S. 189

By CLAUDIA ARGUETA AND TIFFANY STEWART
Universe Staff Writers

Ten months after opposition to the proposed widening of U.S. 189 through Provo Canyon, the Utah Department of Transportation has returned from the drawing board with a new design that includes twin tunnels and four lanes on a two-mile stretch.

The road will be similar to that at the lower part of the canyon near Vivian Park and will extend the next two miles into the canyon, said Kim Morris, director of community relations for UDOT. "We will try to stay on the existing alignment as much as possible," he said.

The twin tunnels will replace a bridge proposal parallel to the Provo River that concerned citizens argued was too close to the river. But the $35 million project still has critics.

Although the need for the expansion and the project's appearance are being questioned, Larry Buss, project engineer, said the canyon's commuter and recreational traffic warrant the improvements.

Morris said the work is needed because the volume of traffic through the canyon is beyond what the present road can handle. Summer is especially busy because of recreational traffic, he said.

"Many accidents can be attributed to the road's present condition," he said. "The benefits of construction would be safer travel, better access to recreational facilities and transport between Heber and Utah County."

U.S. 189 is an important commuter route from Heber, Wallsburg, Midway and Charleston to Utah County, Buss said.

But Lillian Hayes of the Timpanogos Audubon Society said most commuters aren't in such a hurry that they are willing to sacrifice the natural beauty of the canyon to the construction.

"I just don't think that we can afford to be in that big of a hurry," she said, "especially with the economy like it is today. Why do we need to get through the canyon so fast? What is the ultimate destination?"

The road will be one of the most expensive roads in the nation per mile, she said. The cost is estimated at $17.5 million per mile.

Morris said tunneling is expensive and runs up the cost of road construction but is the least environmentally destructive technique. The tunnels will avoid encroaching on the river, a method that was criticized in the original plan, he said.

"There are cheaper ways but people have told what they consider important —taking special measures to protect the aesthetics of the canyon," he said.

Expansion along the two-mile stretch near Wildwood would impact vegetation, increase noise pollution and alter the canyon's natural appearance, Morris said.

"Any time you do any type of construction, there will be environmental impact," he said. "We are trying to minimize them and mitigate them."

Police enjoy holiday spirit; kids get to 'Shop with a Cop'

By STEPHEN PARKER
Universe Staff Writer

Police have taken the initiative in spreading the Christmas spirit this season through their "Shop with a Cop" and Substitute for Santa programs.

The Provo Police Department, Community Action and other police agencies and community programs throughout Utah County have selected children to participate in the "Shop with a Cop" day this year, said Provo officer Karen Morales. The program is sponsored by Kmart and local police departments, but many other agencies contribute to its success each year.

In Orem and Pleasant Grove, police officers have already selected the names of the families they will help in their Substitute for Santa program, said Pleasant Grove Detective Cody Cullimore.

motorcade and drive the children to Spanish Fork High School, where breakfast will be provided.

From there, the police will take the children back to Kmart, where they will shop with the children for Christmas toys and gifts.

"We'll shop for 1 1/2 hours, or however long it takes for all the children to find what they want," Morales said. "The kids have so much fun. It's a wonderful program," Morales said.

Last year, Provo police and city employees contributed $1,200 to help fund the program, Morales said. They expect to exceed that amount this year.

In Orem and Pleasant Grove, police officers have already selected the names of the families they will help in their Substitute for Santa program, said Pleasant Grove Detective Cody Cullimore.

"We provide the Christmas tree, we make the meal and we collect bags full of toys for the children," Cullimore said.

Orem police provided Christmas with all the trimmings for 20 families last year, while Pleasant Grove police met the needs of five, Cullimore said.

Providing Christmas for one family was a particularly memorable experience for Cullimore and the Pleasant Grove police, he said.

The father had done some farm work for one of the officers and was struggling financially, Cullimore said. The officers brought bags stuffed with presents for the children.

"Their eyes lit up so wide, it was amazing," Cullimore said. "We see so much out there on the streets that it's nice to have a reminder of what Christmas is really all about."

Let sexually abused heal

Scientists are still split regarding the phenomenon known as False Memory Syndrome. Some feel the idea that people can suppress memories of sexual abuse for years, then suddenly remember them, is not possible. Others say it is the natural way the brain works and say vocabulary should change to describe "amnesia," "delayed recall" and "dissociation."

The cover story in this week's issue of U.S. News and World Report tries to analyze the two sides, using the story of a man who was sexually abused as a child while attending summer camps as a member of the San Francisco Boys Chorus. He had not recalled the incidents until his sister told him his nephew was joining a boys chorus. For months he was in a depression, until the memories finally came back to him. This man, Ross Cheit, was not fantasizing or remembering false events. When Cheit called dozens of other men who had attended the boys chorus summer camps, he found others who had been sexually abused. Further investigation revealed problems had existed; the evidence was unimpeachable.

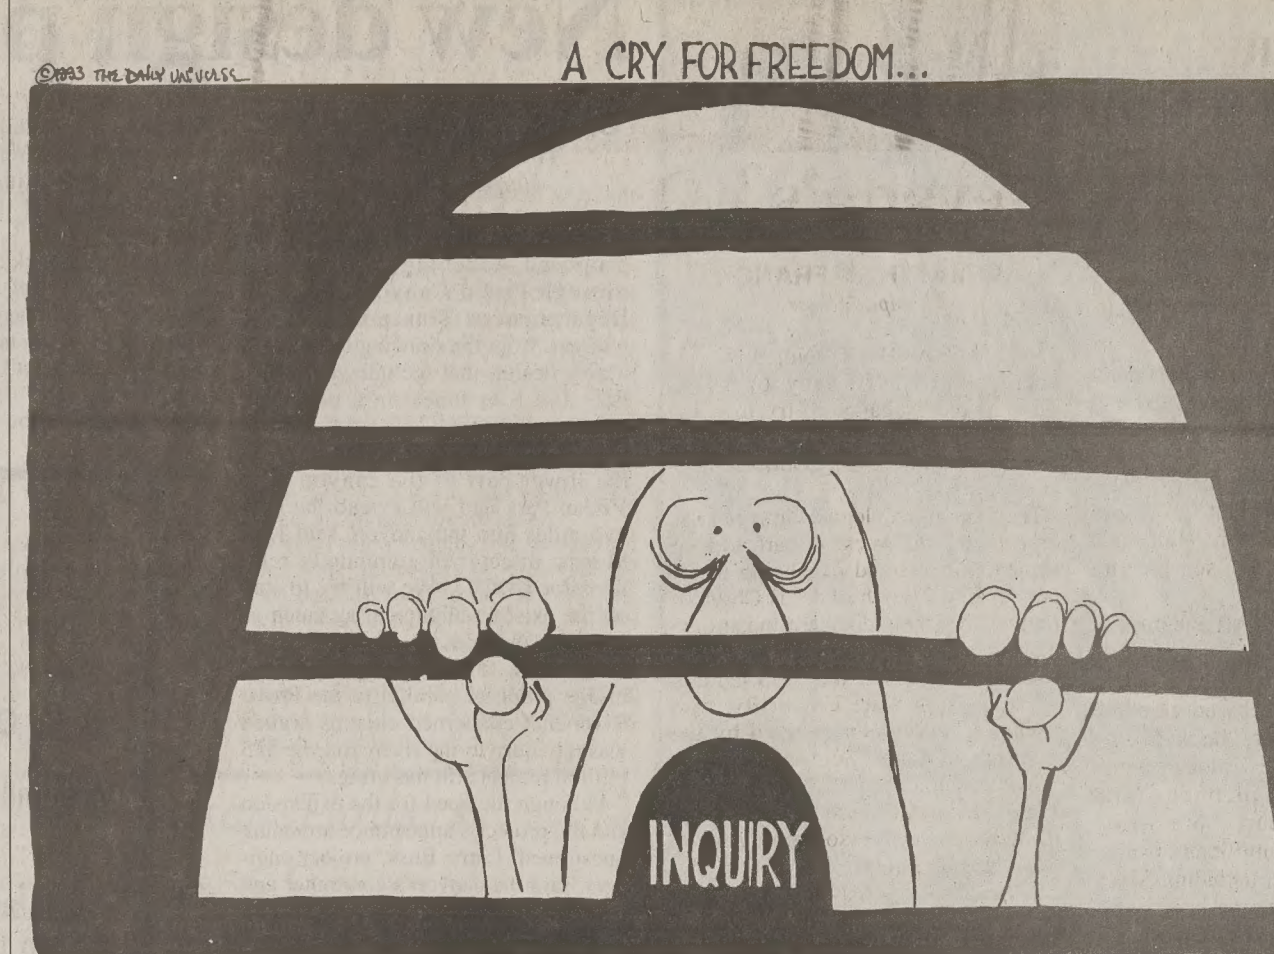

Still, the debate rages, with reputations and financial futures on one side, and mental health and the hope for normalcy on the other. According to U.S. News, some 16 states have extended their civil statutes of limitations on child sex abuse on the basis of the "delayed discovery doctrine."

"Sixty years of experiments have failed to produce any empirical evidence that repression exists," one professor says. But one follow-up study of 200 children who had been treated for sexual abuse found that 1 in 3 did not recall the experiences for which a hospital had treated them 20 years before. Another found that 75 percent of women reporting delayed recall of abuse were able to obtain corroborating evidence. "False claims of childhood sexual abuse are demonstrably rare," the study's leader said. She said false claims account for only 2 percent to 8 percent of reported cases.

Whatever the case, it is clear America has a problem, one which reaches into the LDS community as well. In the October General Conference, Bishop Robert D. Hales again called for members to raise their children in righteousness and forsake all abuse of spouses and children. The Boy Scouts of America revealed that between 1971 and 1991, 1,800 scoutmasters suspected of sexual abuse were quietly removed, which allowed some to move elsewhere and resume positions as scoutmasters.

As U.S. News concludes, the bottom line is that sexual abuse does enduring damage. Whether memories are true is not so much the issue in individual cases, but that the individual needs help dealing with parts of his or her life which is not clear.

The Daily Universe believes people should be careful not to harm reputations of people accused of sexual abuse. But when someone is found guilty, the healing process must be allowed to begin. Ross Cheit's tormentor said he should be allowed to forget the incidents 25 years after the fact. Cheit replied: "I have to live with it for the rest of my life."

Viewpoint

Candidates should question themselves

With the change in requirements to run for BYUSA president, the only major requirement is to have worked for two semesters with BYUSA. This means that somebody who has never worked with BYUSA in the past can begin now to work with BYUSA and become president next year. Additionally, the candidates for BYUSA president and the Student Advisory Council chair will now run on the same ticket. The candidate for SAC chair is not required to have any prior experience in SAC.

For those of you who are considering running for either BYUSA president or SAC chair, if you have had only minimal or no experience in BYUSA and are now signing up with BYUSA so you can run in the election, what are your motives?

If you are planning on running with a candidate for SAC chair who has had no experience in SAC, why did you choose this person? For those of you who will be voting in the election, when you see these candidates whose first experience with BYUSA was when they signed up during fall semester after the new requirements came out, ask yourself, "What are this person's motives?"

BYUSA president should not be a popularity contest, an ego trip or something to put on a resume. Many students have dedicated tremendous time and energy to BYUSA since the very day they started attending BYU. They know how the organization works. How can someone who joins midway through fall semester in order to be eligible to run for president claim to be as qualified or deserving to run BYUSA as these people? How can someone planning on running for SAC chair or planning on running with a candidate for SAC chair who has no previous experience in SAC claim to have the best interests of anybody but themselves in mind? Without knowing the ins and outs of SAC, the leader will become a figurehead and those with experience will run it anyway. No matter how capable someone is, if they have not had experience in SAC, they will not be able to do a good job of running it.

BYUSA has over 100 officer and SAC positions, not all of which were filled at the beginning of the year. If you waited until this then waited until late in the semester how can you justify wanting to lead this organization? How can you claim that you qualified as these 100 people who are serving year and have served for years, not all are stupid, fluffy, following-the-crowd some maintain? Many are trying to make and forge new territory. They have the edge and connections needed to make

Many changes this last year, such as the in the selections process for BYUSA were initiated by insiders. If you have involved in BYUSA, you would have this.

If you truly want to serve and are not seeking for status, there are plenty of positions in BYUSA that will demand all of the time, energies and qualities which you possess. Give.

Fill one of these positions and leave the of president and SAC chair to those who

how the organization runs, who are quick run the organization and who have demontheir devotion to the organization.

Though 6-5, Y is real WAC champion

Last year in this column I pooh-poohed the fact that BYU had won a piece of the 1992 WAC football championship. The Cougars struggled to overcome injuries to three quarterbacks to tie Fresno State and Hawaii for first place. I wrote that there was no tie, that Hawaii was the single WAC champion because a tie-breaker did exist — the Holiday Bowl bid.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. Fresno State and Wyoming may complain, but BYU is the outright 1993 WAC champion. While the Bulldogs will be rewarded for their great season by playing in the Aloha Bowl and the Cowboys will play in the Copper Bowl, the Cougars will represent the WAC in the Holiday Bowl, which by definition is reserved for the WAC champions.

People may complain all they want about BYU's 6-5 record, but the Cougars need make no excuses as far as I'm concerned. They won when they had to win, and they are the WAC champions.

EDWARDS BEFRIENDS THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE — Paul Rolly and Joanne Jacobsen-Wells write "Rolly and Wells" three times a week for the Salt Lake Tribune. BYU football coach LaVell Edwards has been a frequent subject of late. Turns out Edwards lunched with the pair earlier this fall. Wells said because of her past — she was a cheerleader at Utah State and graduated from the University of Utah — she always had trouble stomaching BYU's football success.

She changed her tune after that lunch with Edwards. "I absolutely loved the man, and Rolly loved him," she said. Wells was so taken that when a post-season dinner with Edwards was auctioned at a charity function, she talked her husband into buying it for $300. "It was one of those things where you wake up in the morning and wonder what you've done."

No doubt Edwards will be even more apt to provide witty anecdotes to the Trib's duo now that the Cougars have the Holiday Bowl bid in hand.

ANOTHER LOOK

Tad Walsh
Opinion
Editor

STATS YOU MAY NOT HAVE REALIZED — With a couple of games left this weekend, BYU's football team is in the top 25 in the nation in several statistical categories.

- No. 2 in passing offense with 369.1 yards per game;
- No. 9 in total offense at 474.7 yards per game;
- No. 10 in kick returns, averaging 24 yards per return;
- No. 12 in scoring with 35.5 points a game;
- No. 23 in punting: 37.3 yards per punt.

Individually:

- Tyler Anderson is No. 3 in the nation in kick returns (29.9);
- John Walsh is No. 5 in total offense (310.9);
- Walsh is also No. 9 in passing efficiency (156.0);
- Alan Boardman is No. 9 in punting (43.0);
- Steve Christensen is No. 11 in kick returns (26.6);
- Eric Drage is No. 18 in receiving yards per game (86.7)
- Drage is also No. 21 in catches per game (5.4)

ADD WAC CHAMPIONS — While bowl games provide football teams their reward at the end of successful seasons, the reward in women's volleyball is the chance to host rounds of the playoffs. BYU's team, featuring WAC Player of the Year Michele Fellows and WAC Coach of the Year Elaine Michaelis, hosts a regional playoff game Saturday night at 7:30 in the Smith Field House.

The Cougars also boast First Team All-WAC players Tumua Matu'u and Charlene Fiaputa, and second teamer Carol Rawson. If you haven't been to a match before, this is your last chance to see a team which could well win the national championship. BYU had three match points in its 10-15, 15-8, 16-14, 6-15, 16-18 loss to No. 1 UCLA Friday.

ohm'Y WORD — Did you notice that among UCLA's newest basketball recruits was a 6-10 center from Aberdeen, Wash., named omm'A Givens?

FALL OF THE POPE — When Pope John Paul II tripped on the hem of his robe and fell down four steps last month, fracturing and dislocating his right shoulder, several people saw it as proof the Pope cannot be considered infallible.

A Perfect World

To the editor:

I am writing in response to an ad appearing in The Daily Universe for the past two days. The quarter-page ad for "A Perfect World" seems a bit out of place for a BYU newspaper ad. I'm not trying to be preachy or anything, but I'm wondering if our policies have changed about the things we support in our paper.

I don't remember seeing ads for movies before in The Daily Universe. The reason I question this ad is because I've heard several people comment that this is the first time they've seen an ad with a man smoking a cigarette and carrying a gun in The Daily Universe.

There is no mention about the rating (though I called and found it is PG-13), which disturbed some people I talked with who thought it was rated R.

I do realize there are disclaimers in the paper stating that ads and opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty, university administration, or Board of Trustees, or The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

I also realize that you have the choice of what ads you run and which ones you choose to deny.

It just seemed a little odd, and I thought a reader response might be of use to you.

Scott Wilhite

(Ed.- Movie ads are not new to The Daily Universe. The paper does have a policy that ads for movies rated R will not be accepted.)

More beef

To the editor:

Today's beef provides a healthy, nutritional and safe product for today's consumer.

Despite a fallacy printed in a letter to the editor a few weeks ago, the USDA's official report for 1989 on residue monitoring of meat showed no violative pesticide residues in beef.

Furthermore, residues do not accumulate "up the food chain" in meat as opposed to plant foods.

The reason is that living organisms do not just take up chemicals, but they also detoxify, metabolize, biodegrade and excrete chemicals. As a consequence, only a small fraction of any chemical absorbed is even temporarily deposited in tissues.

Furthermore, the Food and Administration samplings together with total diet studies show that foods supply less than 1 percent of allowable dietary intake of pesticide residues, thus they are well below standards set by the Food and Agriculture Organization/World Health Organization.

It is important to realize that "natural" pest control systems do not result in crops containing potentially toxic chemicals.

Plants naturally produce "pesticides" to fight off parasites, insects, birds and other animals. In addition, organisms living on plants produce toxins.

Today's cattlemen are proud of the health and safety of their product. However, the beef industry is an even healthier product, the cattle industry has adopted the "Beef Quality Assurance Program," whose standards of safety are those set by the FDA.

Use of modern technology makes the production for Americans of a more plentiful, more healthful, safer, less costly source of food.

Judge and jury

To the editor:

As I read the newspaper today, I saw Gov. Mike Leavitt has to make the most important decision of his political career in 10 days: a Supreme Court nomination.

I became fearful when I read that the community had already tied his hands by only three people to choose from, of whom only three were members of the "Good Ol' Boy Club."

I have already had a disappointing experience with Judith Billings and Leonard R. Jacobsen who turned a deaf ear to my in-person request for help from their court when I had paid for my own dishonest lawyer. I know how it is about Michael Murphy.

Gov. Leavitt needs to take another look at the screenings process and be sure that the most honest and upright person is chosen for the job — not in the legal industry, but the most experienced.

"The thing to fear is not the law, but the Judge" (Russian Proverb). In conclusion, I would like to quote Leslie Jacobs, former president of the Ohio Bar Association, "It is cheaper to buy a judge than a governor, and an entire legislature and he can probably do more for you."

Women's view on Holocaust debated at forum

By GAYLON GARBETT
Daily Universe Staff Writer

perspectives of women and men who were involved in the Holocaust can give a clearer picture of what really happened in the destruction of European Jewry, said a speaker in a forum Tuesday morning in the Student Center.

K. Roth, the Russell K. Pitzer Professor of Philosophy at Claremont Graduate College, said the Holocaust was a disaster that has scarred the world forever.

Her talk today will call attention to those scraps of time that permit women and the Holocaust, a subject that has not received as much attention as it deserves," he said.

Roth explained the Holocaust was Germany's planned total annihilation of nearly 6 million Jews and millions of other non-Jewish civilians, including Slavs, homosexuals and the mentally impaired.

He said anti-Semitism meant that the specifically the purity of blood was counted for everything. "The only thing that could be tolerated that would dilute the racial strength on the Third Reich depended," he said.

According to Nazi theory, Roth said, Jewish life posed this threat to the purity of race and culture to a degree that surpassed every other.

He said the Nazis came to call the mass extermination process of the Holocaust "the final solution," Roth said.

The Hebrew word meaning "catastrophe" was also used to name it, he said.

Some of those terms are significant. One of the major reasons involves the "children," he said.

Roth said that between 1 and 1.5 million Jewish children under the age of 16 were murdered by the Nazis.

He said that of the approximately 1.5 million children under that age who were deported from Belgium to Auschwitz only 53 returned.

He said you take seriously the idea that the Holocaust endangers the well-being of the world, the only way to remove it is to completely remove it to do away with it, and for all, with everyone and everything that embodies it," he said.

He said the final solution could not be a special treatment for children."

Roth said that no exceptions could be made for women as well, adding that situations of racism, sexism and homophobia close to follow since women are the ones who bear children.

He said a connection can be shown between anti-Semitism, racism and homophobia," he said.

He said, then, Roth said, were targeted as Jews and as women.

He said the racial anti-Semitism of the Holocaust ultimately implied that the existence of Jewish women constituted a deadly obstacle to the racial and cultural superiority that Germany was convinced it needed," he said.

Nevada's LDS senator to speak at BYU

By MATTHEW FRANCK
Campus Editor

For U.S. Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., a visit to BYU isn't merely a political pit stop but a chance to try to overcome what he sees as misconceptions about LDS culture and political affiliation.

The Democratic legislator says he is on campus this week, in part, to help students understand that being members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints does not mean they have to be Republicans.

Reid, who joined the LDS Church while at Utah State University, says he has always been puzzled by the disproportionate allegiance Church members have to the Republican Party. He says Church leaders' backgrounds may have something to do with the political tilt.

"One of the big reasons is that a lot of local Church leadership comes from the business community, and they tend to be more conservative," said Reid, who added that he is pleased that general authorities do not mix politics with doctrine.

He says within the LDS community people are often far too fearful of government, favoring extremist views that "anything government does is bad."

The Democratic party is not about creating bureaucracy, but making government function properly, he said.

"Government is here to stay," he said. "Why shouldn't we have good government?"

Reid says he is discouraged that some Church members join the Republican party on the sole issue of abortion.

"I am totally opposed to a single-issue electorate," said Reid, who pointed out that there are pro-life politicians in both parties.

Recently Reid grabbed national attention for working with Sen. Ted Reid will guest lecture in several political science classes on the recent congressional session and President Clinton's record.

Kennedy, D-Mass., on legislation to curb violent protests at abortion clinics despite the fact he is pro-life.

He said he was pleased by what the Senate accomplished in the last session, pointing to the National Service Act and progress on health care as examples. He is very supportive of President Clinton, and says he is impressed with what the president has achieved in a short time.

"President Clinton is the most successful president of the past 40 years," he said, citing his 86.9 percent rate of legislative success.

Today and Thursday Reid will offer lectures on the recent congressional session and Clinton's record for several political science classes.

Tuesday Reid met with BYU President Rex E. Lee, who he home taught when the two were both living in Washington, D.C.

Reid has had three children graduate from BYU. His son Josh is attending the University and is the president of the Campus Democrats.

Reid was sworn into office in 1987 and chairs a subcommittee within the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

BYUSA teams up with Santa, gives trees for Christmas

By LISA RANDS
Universe Staff Writer

BYUSA is sponsoring a campuswide service project that will provide Christmas trees for families who might otherwise not have them.

The annual Tree Fest in the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center gives students, faculty and staff the opportunity to decorate Christmas trees that will be given to needy families who have been located through the Sub for Santa program.

Jessica Page, a sophomore majoring in public relations, has helped organize the project this year and says Tree Fest has been successful in the past.

"They (Student Leadership Development) donated 50 trees to be decorated last year and we gave them all away. There was a lot of enthusiasm and great ideas," she said.

Student Leadership Development will donate 50 trees and tree stands again this year. Page says most of the trees have been allotted to groups and organizations already, but there are still some left to decorate.

"We still need a few groups to sign up, but if we don't find someone to decorate the remaining trees we will just deliver them to the families as they are and let them decorate them."

The Tree Fest will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the East Lounge, ELWC, and refreshments will be served. BYUSA will deliver the trees once they are decorated or the groups may deliver them if they wish.

Are you disgusted with diamond salespeople and their pinky rings and fake Rolex watches?

Are you tired of clerks on commission who smile only with their mouth but not their face (and are nice only as long as they think you're buying)?

Wouldn't you like to browse in a store that has real people who give out real information on how to buy a diamond ring?

Welcome to the staff at Wilson Diamonds.

The most common compliment we get is that people here are "different." We've also been told they're more friendly, patient, and knowledgeable. Which isn't surprising because we never talk about how to "close" a sale, just how to best serve customers. We consider pressure a poor substitute for substance. That's why for the past 19 years our customers have consistently recommended us to their friends.

Of course, it's easy for our people to be genuine and warm. With our guaranteed prices, huge selection of quality rings, and unmatched guarantees, they are unthreatened at letting you look around and compare.

BYU manufacturing engineering program rated best in nation

Long before the Clinton administration made manufacturing its No. 1 priority for science and technology research and development, the College of Engineering and Technology at BYU believed American industry could dominate the international manufacturing field.

That foresight has been confirmed with significant national recognition to the two manufacturing programs housed within the Department of Manufacturing Engineering and Engineering Technology.

The 25-year-old manufacturing engineering technology (MET) program has been named the No. 1 program of its kind in the country and the new manufacturing engineering program (MFE), established in 1990, also received accreditation.

BYU became the 11th program nationwide to receive MFE accreditation and was cited specifically for excellent facilities, experienced faculty and innovative courses that unite industry and academics in the educational program.

"The United States has, unfortunately, neglected the critical science of manufacturing in the past few decades," said A. Brent Strong, chair of the department.

"The result has been a loss of manufacturing business to foreign competitors. But if the United States wants to regain a dominance in manufacturing, we have to learn how to build better and develop new manufacturing systems."

BYU student chapter wins chemical engineering award

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers (AIChE) has awarded the BYU AIChE student chapter the Student Chapters' Award of Excellence.

The BYU group was among 15 out of 150 chapters across the United States to receive such an honor.

This marks the ninth consecutive year that BYU has been chosen for the award, which was presented at the recent AIChE meeting in St. Louis.

During the 1992-93 school year, the student chapter sponsored numerous activities and provided opportunities for professional growth.

At this year's annual meeting in St. Louis, former student Daryl Scott competed against nine other regional conference winners from throughout the United States and Canada. He won the National Student Paper competition for his research on writing computer programs to evaluate DNA sequences.

Brown bag lecture to explore computer database for women poets

"Constructing a Computer Database for LDS Women Poets" will be the topic of a brown bag luncheon sponsored by the BYU Women's Research Institute Thursday at noon in 378 ELWC.

Gary Hatch, an assistant professor of English, along with two of his assistants, Ryan Larsen and Jann Rigo, will present the lecture.

"I noticed how many women in the Church wrote poetry," said Hatch. "I saw a great variety. Poetry was a major means of expression for these women."

He will share how he conceived the idea of the database and its importance for future research.

His assistants will present their favorites from the anthology of women poets.

Speech therapy available for students

By MISSY MILLS
Universe Staff Writer

Stuttering and foreign accents need not be a hindrance to a student's speech because the Speech and Language Clinic is trying to establish group therapies to help students in these areas.

The Speech and Language Clinic is part of the Comprehensive Clinic, which is in the John Taylor Building.

Tressa J. Friend, director of the Speech and Language Clinic, said they don't have enough clients to establish group therapy for stutterers and those wishing to reduce their foreign accents.

To establish a group, Friend said six or seven clients are needed.

BYU students receive the services free, all others pay a minimal cost, she said.

Friend said she has seen good results from the group therapy for stuttering and foreign accent reduction when she worked as clinical supervisor at Northwestern University Speech and Language Clinic.

Overcoming stuttering or reducing a person's foreign accent is dependent upon several factors but is largely based on how committed he or she is to therapy, Friend said.

"They are the ones that have to change," she said.

Most students do not know that there are services available to help them with their speech and language, or else they would be at the clinic, she said.

Friend said foreign accents cannot be entirely eliminated, but the accent can be reduced.

When asked how many students on BYU's campus stutter, Friend said there is no way of telling unless students come into the clinic.

She said that 1 percent of school-age children worldwide stutter.

There is no one cause of stutter but there are contributing factors including family history, physical growth and changes in a person's life. For each person it is different, Friend said.

The clinic also helps people with voice disorders and language disorders, she said.

Festival of Trees donates to needy

By SHANNON REED
Universe Lifestyle Writer

Ever wonder how to decorate your Christmas tree? The 23rd annual Festival of Trees may give you a few good ideas with approximately 460 trees, large and small, on display at the Salt Palace Exhibition Hall today through Saturday.

The festival is sponsored by the Festival of Trees Women's Endowment Board.

"All proceeds of the festival will be donated to Primary Children's Hospital," said Faye Layton, member of the alumni board.

The festival includes many other things besides the trees themselves. There are about five large, outdoor playhouses for children and a boat that is like a playhouse. There will be a gift shop, table top center pieces, wreaths, gingerbread houses, all kinds of good food and continuous entertainment, Layton said.

"They had to scale down a bit this year because of a smaller facility," said Denise Beauregard, events management assistant for the Salt Palace.

Everything for the festival including trees, time, and entertainment is donated. All members of the board and everyone working for the festival have volunteered their time.

"To the board members, it's our Christmas," Layton said. "There are children at the hospital that have no way of paying for their stay and we help them. We raised $700,000 last year just from Festival of Trees and we hope to do it again this year. This is one of the most successful Festival of Trees in all of the United States."

There are 120 small trees ranging in size from teeny-tiny to 4 feet high and about 340 large trees that start at 4 feet tall and go up to 16 feet high, she said.

A few of the well-known trees will be the three Utah Jazz Basket Trees. These are decorated with Jazz memorabilia and will be auctioned off. There is also a tree donated by Lagoon. A tree with a Hawaiian theme will have fresh leis flown in everyday, Layton said.

The festival is open from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Admission for the festival is $3 for adults and $1.75 for children ages 2 to 11.

ETRUSCAN MEMORABILIA: Visitors of the Etruscan Bazaar can purchase items ranging from souvenir mugs to Etruscan art reproductions.

New Etruscan Bazaar offers jewelry, replicas

By MEGAN CHIPMAN
Universe Lifestyle Writer

The premiere exhibit at the new Museum of Art includes pieces from all areas of Etruscan life, plus an opportunity for visitors to shop for reproductions of those pieces, Etruscan style.

The Etruscan Bazaar is a temporary store that sells souvenirs from "The Etruscans: Legacy of a Lost Civilization" exhibit in the Museum of Art.

The store is located in the basement of the museum and has an open feel, similar to what a real Etruscan bazaar would have been like.

About 75 to 80 percent of the items are reproductions of pieces in the Etruscan collection here or Etruscan collections at other museums, said Bev Cohen, bazaar buyer and supervisor.

Jewelry, books, food items, pottery, baskets and exhibit posters make up the majority of the souvenirs.

"We had most of the items imported from Italy," Cohen said. "The others we just went to different markets to find."

One particular item the bazaar carries is buccero, a shiny black, polished terra cotta. According to a display description, this pottery was invented by the Etruscans and is excellent for keeping water fresh. Original buccero pieces can be seen in the exhibit.

Another popular item at the bazaar is the jewelry, said Leanne Isaac, bazaar sales clerk.

The Etruscan women wore earrings, necklaces, bracelets, rings and pins similar to contemporary styles of jewelry.

The gold-overlay jewelry at the bazaar has been fashioned after pieces in the exhibit. Some of the jewelry includes real gems as the center of the jewelry, Isaac said.

A major part of Etruscan life that the exhibit focuses on is food. Banquets, parties and festivals involving food are all characteristic of Etruscan life.

The food items at the bazaar that are representative of Italian cooking include vinegars, pasta, pasta sauce, chocolate and spices.

Not only does the bazaar include the food, it includes several Italian cookbooks to help prepare it.

The Etruscan Bazaar will be open until April when the premiere exhibit ends. The space will then be used for permanent exhibits, Cohen said.

Holiday Bowl happy to have BYU

By JEFF CALL
Sports Editor

BYU and the Holiday Bowl are not strangers.

The Cougars, in fact, played in the first seven Holiday Bowls and brought the bowl acclaim with high-scoring games and dramatic finishes.

And on Dec. 30, BYU, despite its 6-5 record, will be back. Both the school and bowl officials couldn't be more pleased.

Tuesday afternoon, the Holiday Bowl officials, in town from San Diego, formally extended an invitation to BYU in the Cougar Room at Cougar Stadium.

"BYU is always at the top of our wish list at the beginning of each year," Holiday Bowl president Steve Horrell told the players, coaches and administration in attendance. "You (BYU) have made our tradition."

President Rex E. Lee accepted the invitation on behalf of the University. "I've been to a lot of bowl games," Lee said, "but I can say that there is no finer bowl game in the country than the Holiday Bowl."

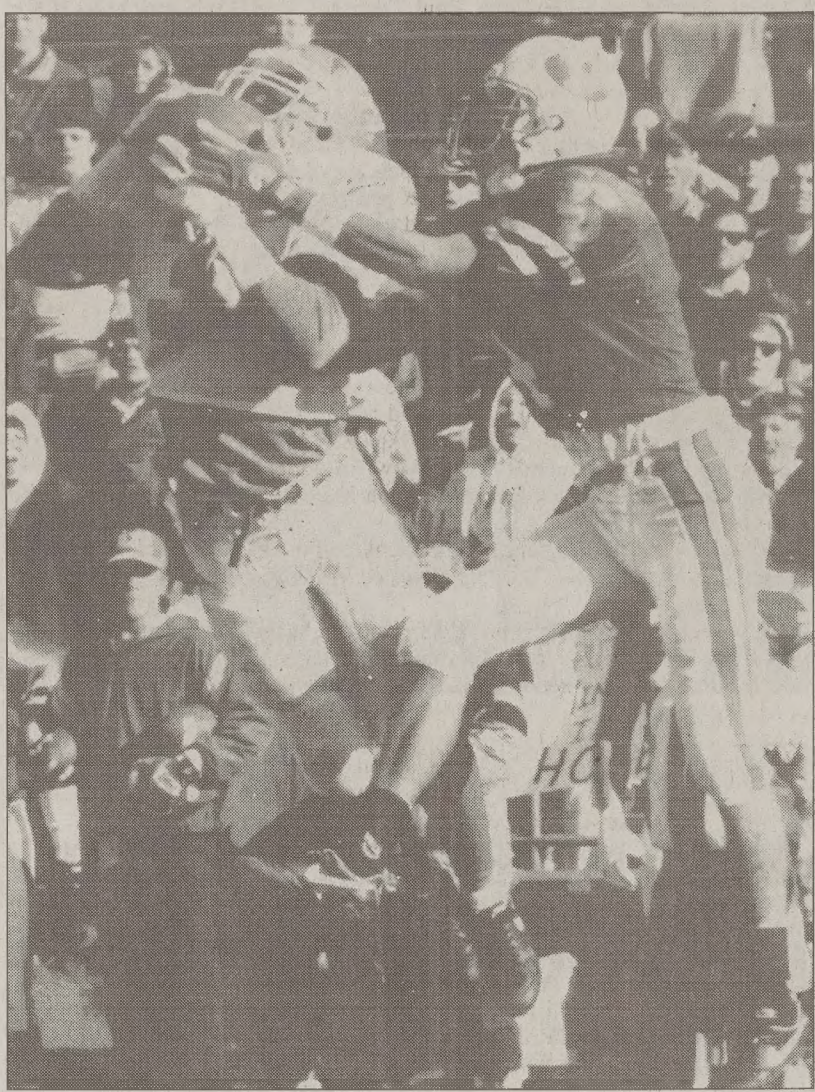

"There's no finer place to be than in San Diego for a bowl game," coach LaVell Edwards said. "The Holiday Bowl is a great place to be. A couple of times (this season) I didn't think it would work out this way."

The Cougars will meet either Ohio State or Wisconsin in the game. Edwards is optimistic about how his team will fare.

"By the time we get down there, we'll have people healthy," Edwards said. "There's no doubt in my mind, it'll be a great game."

The team will practice Dec. 9-11 and take time off for final exams. The Cougars will leave for San Diego Dec. 22.

UNIVERSALS: Seniors Eric Drage and Todd Herget were named to the 1993 Hitachi/CFA Scholar-Athlete Team. Drage, a receiver, carries a 3.4 cumulative GPA in secondary education and Herget, a linebacker, has a 3.4 GPA in pre-med. Both Drage and Herget were first team All-WAC and Academic All-WAC selections.

INTERCEPTION: UTEP's Kevin Goolsby intercepts a pass against receiver Tyler Anderson and the Cougars, but it could not keep them away from their 11th invitation to the Holiday Bowl.

Jacksonville awarded NFL franchise

The Associated Press

ROSEMONT, Ill. — The NFL took on a distinct Southeast tilt Tuesday, selecting longshot Jacksonville, Fla., to join Charlotte as its 1995 expansion teams.

"The Southeast," commissioner Paul Tagliabue said, "is a terrific area for football, a real hotbed."

So it will be the Jacksonville Jaguars playing in aqua shirts trimmed with yellow sleeves and black spots and an open-mouthed jaguar on the helmet.

They joined the Carolina Panthers by beating out the old-line cities of St. Louis and Baltimore, as well as Memphis, Tenn. St. Louis and Baltimore each has lost teams in the past decade; Memphis was one of the favorites when the NFL first began discussing expansion six years ago.

"Listen, in the NFL I'm not surprised about anything," said Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills. "You never go into any meeting with a predetermined view."

Charlotte was chosen five weeks ago at a meeting in which the owners couldn't decide on a second team. This time they did because Tagliabue made up his mind to support Jacksonville on Monday.

The expansion and finance committees went 10-2 for Jacksonville, with Robert Tisch of the New York Giants and Norman Braman of the Philadelphia Eagles supporting Baltimore. The final expansion vote was 26-2, with Braman and James Busch Orthwein of the New England Patriots voting against Jacksonville. Tisch's co-owner, Wellington Mara, switched the Giants to the majority.

The Los Angeles Rams, Cincinnati Bengals and the Patriots all have indicated willingness to move. Baltimore is interested in the Rams and St. Louis in the Patriots.

"We will follow our normal process for moving teams," said Tagliabue citing rules requiring owners to show they can do better in a new territory than their own. He declined comment when asked if any current teams met those criteria, but said he's committed to keeping the Patriots in New England.

The Jacksonville group is headed by Wayne Weaver, a Connecticut shoe manufacturer, and includes Jeb Bush, the son of former President George Bush. It will play in the Gator Bowl, renovated for $121 million and cut back from 82,000 to 73,000 seats, with 10,000 club seats and 68 luxury boxes.

The ownership also includes Deron Cherry, the former All-Pro safety of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Walter Payton, the NFL's all-time leading rusher, was part of the St. Louis effort from the start.

"How much does this hurt?" Payton asked. "There's no words to describe it. I think Jacksonville was the safest choice they could make. I wouldn't want to get into a situation where I'm going to be in court for the next 15 years."

Another would-be owner, Baltimore's Malcolm Glazer:

"I'm just practically ready to start crying."

Notre Dame could go to Sugar Bowl

The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — West Virginia, which lost a national title to Notre Dame in the 1989 Fiesta Bowl, appears to be locked into another big battle with the Irish — for the right to play in the $4.15 million Sugar Bowl.

"Everybody wants Notre Dame," a source close to the bowl negotiations said Tuesday. "Their TV ratings are light years ahead of everyone in college football."

Bowl officials indicated that West Virginia's first choice is the Sugar Bowl. But it was unclear whether the Mountaineers or Notre Dame would be the Sugar Bowl's first choice to play No. 9 Florida (9-2) or No. 16 Alabama (8-2-1), who play for the Southeastern Conference championship Saturday.

"We have not addressed that," said Troy Mathieu, executive director of the Sugar Bowl.

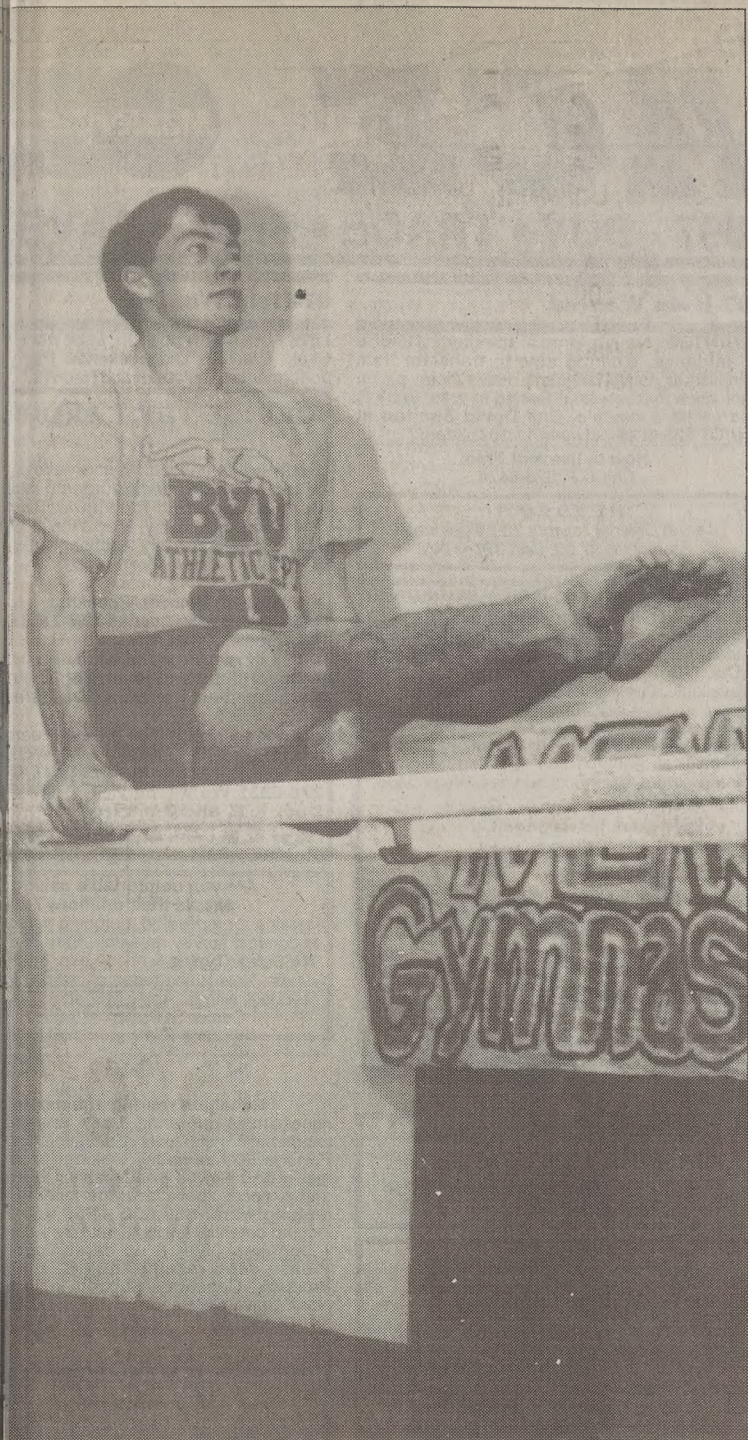

The way things stand now, the Sugar Bowl might not get a choice. The Cotton Bowl is in line to pick first under the bowl coalition format.

If the Cotton picks No. 3 West Virginia (11-0), and the Mountaineers, champions of the Big East Conference pass, then the coalition must send them to the Sugar Bowl.

"The Big East champion and ACC champion and Notre Dame must play in the Orange, Sugar or Cotton ... unless it's 1 vs. 2," said Rick Baker, executive director of the Cotton Bowl. "So obviously if West Virginia passes to the Sugar Bowl, again there is no other option."

But the whole scenario could change by Sunday, the day the final regular-season rankings are released and bowl invitations officially can be extended.

If the rankings shake up enough, it's possible the Sugar Bowl could pick first. And it's also possible the Sugar Bowl committee might opt for No. 5 Notre Dame (10-1) and its megabucks TV following, although officials for the panel aren't saying.

BYU gymnasts fare well at Rocky Mountain Open; Cougar team takes second place

By VALERIE BIRD
Universe Sports Writer

With a little help from All-American Darren Elg and the inspiration of having their coach competing with them, the BYU men's gymnastics team took second in the Rocky Mountain Open on Saturday.

The Cougars by taking first in the All-Around competition.

They also finished in first place on the pommel horse with a score of 9.65 and finished in the top five in three other events with second place finishes on the parallel bars (9.5) and the floor exercises (9.6) and a fourth place finish in the vault (9.1).

There were expectations for me to be at the top, and it was a relief to be at the top," he said.

"I thought I would be pretty good about the first but I have a lot of work to do if I'm to be at the top," he said.

There were some doubts whether the Ellis would compete or not because he was sick, Sakamoto said.

He got off to a shaky start, but managed to pull together as the meet went on.

He finished third on the parallel bars (9.4) and fourth on the rings, which was good enough for seventh in the All-Around competition. He was happy with his performance in the meet.

"I am looking forward to the season because of the atmosphere in the gym and the tremendous team unity," Ellis said.

Kenzo Koshimura took fifth on the pommel horse and finished 13th in the all-around competition.

This was a good competition, because he could see what he needed to work on and improve for the regular season, Koshimura said.

Sakamoto, in addition to coaching his team, took fourth place on the parallel bars with a score of 9.35. This was his first competition since representing the U.S. in the 1972 Olympic games.

"This was the best routine I've done and it was so much fun to do," Sakamoto said. "I received a standing ovation when I was done and it was an incredible feeling."

"Sakamoto is a lot of fun and he got really excited about competing," Elg said.

"It was fun for us to watch him because it reminds us that we're in gymnastics not to win, but to have fun."

Graduate assistant coach, Chris Reshetar, received the highest score of the entire meet with a 9.8 on the floor exercises.

"I felt really successful at what I did," he said. "When I finished and left the mat, I knew I had done a good routine."

Three days of competition await the men's and women's swim teams this Thursday through Saturday at the Speedo Cup Invitational in Long Beach, California.

Women's coach Stan Crump said this week's meet will give his 18 Cougar swimmers "a dry run for the conference" which begins in early March.

"We need this three-day meet to get ready for the championships later in the season," said men's coach Tim Powers.

Eighteen women and 20 men swimmers will compete with some of the nation's top swimmers including swimmers from Stanford.

"Stanford is going to be there with their international champions, so it's going to be an exciting meet for us," Powers said.

Freshman breaststroke swimmer Byron Shefchick said Stanford is famous for their Olympian swimmers and their top swimming program.

"We expect them to clean up the meet," Shefchick said. "The other competition is about at our level."

Powers said the other challenge this weekend will be to maintain stamina in seven events over a three-day period.

"It's a little more mentally difficult," Shefchick said. "But if you get pumped up for it, it's not much harder than regular workouts. You just have to be mentally prepared."

Freshman freestyler Cherrill Haws said her main goal in this week's meet was to break the BYU 1650-meter freestyle record. Last year, Haws' high school time of 16:20 topped the 16:23 BYU record set by Jill Teeplees. She said she hoped for a repeat performance at the college level.

Next year's incoming freshman look as promising, as coach Crump has already begun recruiting for the 1994-95 season.

Next year's incoming freshman look as promising, as coach Crump has already begun recruiting for the 1994-95 season.

Nicole Collard, Shannon Carmichael and Michele Riemann have made early commitments to join the Cougar squad next season as incoming freshmen. The three swimmers qualified for last year's U. S. Junior Nationals. Collard finished as a finalist.

Collard, the only Utah recruit of West Valley City, competes in the freestyle and backstroke events. Last season she broke five Utah State swimming records.

Carmichael, from Port Orchard, Wash., swims the breaststroke and academically she is recognized as one of the top 16 student athletes from the National Scholastic Swimming Coaches Association.

"Our distance lane is getting better and better each year," Crump said. Crump said Riemann, Gainesville, Ga. will be a great addition to the team as a distance freestyler.

Utah engineers build Star Trek model toys

By ROCHELLE SINK
Universe Staff Writer

Two Utahns are in the process of making their dreams come true using the motto from "Field of Dreams" as they build "Star Trek" spaceship models.

Rick Blair, president of Meridian Engineering, and Ritchie Kinmont created fiber-optic illuminated scale models of the U.S.S. Enterprise and a Romulan War Bird and sold all rights to produce fiber-optic models to Ertl Toy Company in Dyersville, Iowa, Blair said.

In presenting their plans to Ertl, Blair and Kinmont had to develop a way to simplify the models, Blair said. Their theme became "If we build it, they will come," a familiar line from "Field of Dreams."

"What was really weird was when we found out the movie had been filmed in Dyersville, Iowa, and that's where Ertl was," he said.

Blair said Kinmont came to him with the idea for the models when he returned from his mission in North Carolina. He worked on the idea on his P-days.

"I've worked with some of the most gifted people in the world," he said. "But I've never known anyone as gifted as Ritchie."

Kinmont, 25, never attended college, Blair said. But he started his own company when he was 17 years old and has continued doing amazing things since then.

Blair and Kinmont finished their model of the U.S.S. Enterprise on Nov. 15, 1991, and took it to a "Star Trek" convention in Las Vegas, he said.

"We thought it was cute, but we didn't know if anyone else would like it," he said. "We didn't know whether to be embarrassed or excited."

Apparently excitement was in order as 2,000 fans lined up to inspect their handiwork, he said.

The U.S.S. Enterprise and Romulan War Bird models will be displayed throughout the holiday season at the Hansen Planetarium, said Doug Lowe, public relations manager at the planetarium. The planetarium unveiled the prototypes Tuesday.

The toy company unveiled the U.S.S. Enterprise model at the International Toy Show in Chicago in October, Lowe said. The toy company has received orders for 60,000 kits and will begin marketing the kits in February 1994.

The kits will retail for $48.75, maybe less, Blair said.

Anyone who is moderately experienced with building models should be able to put one together, Lowe said.

"Star Trek stuff is so popular, and it's kind of a challenge for a model builder," he said.

"I've heard it's the most significant innovation in model building in the past 30 years," Lowe said.

"The models are very lifelike, even though they're miniaturized," he said. "They kind of revolve on their bases, and you feel like you're in space when you look at them."

SPRING/SUMMER AWARDS
DEADLINE: Dec. 15

There are standards of excellence
in the jewelry business.

And people who uphold them.

Before you select the ring or jewelry you'll wear and cherish a lifetime, it's important to find a jeweler who can explain the 4 C's and two months salary guideline.

Diamonds and fine jewelry cannot be judged on appearances alone. Subtle differences in quality can greatly affect value and price. That's why the experience, ethics and credentials of your jeweler are so important.

We're proud to be members of the American Gem Society, a group of jewelers in North America dedicated to consumer protection. Since its founding in 1934, the society has upheld the highest ethical business standards. We're tested annually to maintain membership. AGS certification is your guarantee of ethics and knowledge.
